ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Janet Warren, DSW

I am a Professor of Psychiatry and Neurobehavioral Sciences (PNBS) at the University of Virginia. In this capacity, I serve as teaching and research faculty at the Institute of Law, Psychiatry and Public Policy, a multi-disciplinary policy center organized under the auspices of the School of Law and the School of Medicine at the University of Virginia. I have held this position since 1981.

In my position at the Institute of Law, Psychiatry and Public Policy, I train psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers in conducting forensic evaluations for the courts and specialize in evaluations that focus on assessing the risk for violent behavior and the examination of individuals charged with sex crimes. I have worked with the FBI's Behavioral Sciences Unit in developing paradigms relevant to the criminal investigative analyses of sexual offenders including distinctions between impulsive versus ritualistic sex offenders, and the elements of modus operandi, ritual, and signature displayed in an offender's crime scene behavior. I have collaborated with the FBI's Behavioral Sciences Unit and FBI National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime in conducting research on the crime scene analysis of serial rape, sexually sadistic murder, and the criminal histories of individuals convicted of sexual crimes against children. I have served on Virginia state crime commissions that examined policy pertaining to the satanic sexual abuse of children (1991), the registration of sex offenders (1993), and the commitment of sexually violent predators (1994). I am the University of Virginia liaison to the FBI Behavioral Sciences Unit and sit on the Research Advisory Board of the FBI National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime. In 2010, I began the review of the Boy Scouts Ineligible Volunteer (IV) "P" files which examines instances of sexual abuse of youth by individuals associated with scouting and am currently undertaking a review of 4,200 of these dating from 1990-2010.

I have published in peer reviewed journals on topics including forensic evaluation and opinion formation for the courts, serial rape, child abduction and murder, crime scene analysis of sexually sadistic crimes involving children and adults, consensual and coerced sex in prisons, risk factors for violence, personality disorders, psychopathy, female inmates, linkage analysis involving sexual crimes, the use of third party information in conducting evaluations for the courts, and juvenile adjudicative competency and restoration. Many of these publications have derived from research funding that I was awarded by the National Institute of Justice, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, and the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services.

I have a BSW and a MSW from the University of Manitoba, Canada, and a doctorate in Social Welfare from the University of California, Berkeley. I am a clinical social worker licensed by the Virginia Board of Social Work (1988), a Sex Offender Treatment Provider (1994) licensed by the Virginia Board of Psychology, and a psychoanalyst accredited by the New York Freudian Society (2001).
